Adobe has made a number of changes to the application shortcuts button for Windows and macOS. This includes replacing the standard photography icon with a new one that better reflects that the Elements application is now part of the photo category. It's easy to move standard layers directly, and one can simply select the layer and click on the required tool's icon to use it. The tool windows themselves appear in a noticeably different panel by default. This makes it easy to move around the application's interface without having to open up the tool panel. Another architectural change being introduced is the new Global assist function. By typing any text in the application's tool windows or any other EDL, a suggestion box will appear that puts in the name of the tool you are looking for. It's an easy way to refresh your memory on how to perform a task by just typing. Samsung LQ300FIII 72-Inch 4K Ultra HD Premium LED TV features
