In 2017, the wage commissions lowered the minimum wage from ₱6000 to ₱5,900 and the maximum wage from ₱4,800 to ₱5,900. The wage commission also increased the wage floor for workers with professional experience from ₱700 to ₱1200. Further, the wage commission capped the wage growth rate at 5% in 2018. Sharing economy Many features of the Philippines' sharing economy are not new to the country, as the sharing economy in the Philippines is in its infancy. The sharing economy, also known as collaborative economy, peer-to-peer (P2P) economy, or cooperative economy, is the umbrella term for a family of business models under which traditionally separate industries of consumption and production are integrated through non-traditional methods of distribution, provision and exchange (often referred to as peer-to-peer or direct-to-consumer business models). The sharing economy is generally described as the sharing or collaborative consumption model where consumers share resources and services among each other in a peer-to-peer manner. In the sharing economy, peer-to-peer transactions are facilitated using new information technologies, making it a largely internet-based value chain. It has been supported by the consumers, technology giants, regulators, and entrepreneurs. There is a wide array of labor-sharing platforms and platforms facilitating consumer-to-consumer transactions in the Philippines. It is considered as one of the fastest growing sharing economy trend in Southeast Asia, and is expected to be an $80 billion market by 2023. Numerous player in the sharing economy market, including Globosity, Working Arts, InviteMedia, and Collaborative Commons, are innovating by developing tools and platforms that enable Filipinos to better connect with goods and services.
