Blink 182 Take Off Your Pants And Jacket Album Mp3 51

If you are a fan of blink-182, you probably know their fourth studio album, Take Off Your Pants and Jacket, released in 2001. This album was a huge success, selling over 14 million copies worldwide and spawning three hit singles: "The Rock Show", "First Date" and "Stay Together for the Kids". But did you know that there is a hidden track on this album that you can only access by fast-forwarding or rewinding the last song? The hidden track is called "51" and it is a short instrumental piece that lasts for 51 seconds. It features a distorted guitar riff and some drum beats, and it sounds like a leftover from the recording sessions. Some fans speculate that it is a tribute to Area 51, the secret military base in Nevada that is rumored to have aliens and UFOs. Others think that it is just a random number that has no meaning. Whatever the case, "51" is a rare gem that only hardcore blink-182 fans know about. If you want to listen to it, you can find it on the iTunes version of Take Off Your Pants and Jacket [^1^] [^2^] [^3^]. Just play the last song, "Please Take Me Home", and fast-forward to the end. You will hear a few seconds of silence and then "51" will start playing. Alternatively, you can rewind from the beginning of the song and you will hear "51" in reverse. Take Off Your Pants and Jacket is a classic blink-182 album that showcases their trademark blend of pop-punk, rock and humor. If you haven't listened to it yet, you are missing out on some great tunes. And if you have listened to it, don't forget to check out the hidden track "51". You might be surprised by what you hear.Take Off Your Pants and Jacket was not the only blink-182 album that had hidden tracks. In fact, the band had a tradition of including bonus songs on their albums, often as jokes or pranks. For example, their debut album Cheshire Cat (1995) had a hidden track called "Zulu" that was a cover of a song by The Vandals. [^1^] Their second album Dude Ranch (1997) had a hidden track called "I Won't Be Home for Christmas" that was a humorous song about hating the holidays. [^1^] Their third album Enema of the State (1999) had a hidden track called "Life's So Boring" that was a short acoustic song with nonsensical lyrics. [^1^] The band also had some hidden tracks that were not on their albums, but on their singles or EPs. For example, their single "All the Small Things" (2000) had a hidden track called "Family Reunion" that was a live recording of a vulgar song with only four words. [^1^] Their EP Dogs Eating Dogs (2012) had a hidden track called "Pretty Little Girl" that featured rapper Yelawolf. [^1^] Their single "Bored to Death" (2016) had a hidden track called "Built This Pool" that was a 16-second joke song about nudity. [^1^] Blink-182's hidden tracks are part of their legacy as a band that never took themselves too seriously and always had fun with their music. They also show their versatility and creativity as musicians who could experiment with different styles and genres. Whether they were hidden or not, blink-182's songs always had something to offer to their fans.
